

L'ATTAQUE · VARIANT 3 OF 3

Tri-Tactics

10×10
BOARD

2
PLAYERS

TRI-TACTICS

Published by H.P. Gibson & Sons, Britain, circa 1937. Tri-Tactics extends the L'Attaque system to a combined-forces game. Each player commands units from three military branches: Army (land), Navy (sea), and Air Force. Air units introduce a new movement type — overflying obstacles — that breaks from the standard L'Attaque movement rules.

BOARD

10 × 10 board with lake squares (impassable to land units) and sea squares (impassable to land and air units without modification; sea units move freely on them). The board features distinct land and water regions.

PIECE OVERVIEW

Three branches, each with a ranked hierarchy:

Army (Land units): Move 1 step orthogonally on land squares. Cannot enter sea squares.

Navy (Sea units): Move 1 step orthogonally on sea squares. Can move on sea and the edges of land squares adjacent to sea in some rule variants.

Air Force (Air units): Move 1 step orthogonally. Unique ability: Air units may overfly lake and sea squares — they may cross any square type but must land on a land square at the end of each move.

Capture rules: Higher rank within the same branch defeats lower rank. Cross-branch combat is resolved by a chart (Air units generally hold an advantage over surface units unless specific counters are present).

Special pieces:

- ♦ Headquarters (Flag equivalent): Immovable, hidden. Capturing it wins.
- ♦ Minefield/Fortification (Bomb equivalent): Immovable. Defeated only by specialist sappers/mine sweepers.
- ♦ Branch-specific scouts: slide unlimited within their movement type.

WIN CONDITIONS

Capture the opponent's Headquarters, or reduce them to only immovable pieces.

ATTRIBUTION

Tri-Tactics. Published by H.P. Gibson & Sons, Britain, approximately 1937. Combined-forces adaptation of L'Attaque. Public domain rule set. Full original piece hierarchy and cross-branch combat chart should be sourced from the original H.P. Gibson edition before publishing.